

opposed to all suggestion of government ownership.

President Roosevelt respects Mr. Tillman. "He is honest and he is a fighter," he said of the South Carolina Senator to-day. "I am glad the rate bill is to be in his hands."

Democratic hands, he remembered. Senator Dilliver and Representative Townsend went to see the President to-day. They were smiling when they came away after a conference of half an hour or so.

"The President is delighted," said Mr. Dilliver, the author of a rate bill introduced in the Senate, exactly similar to the Hepburn bill, which passed the House, and for which Mr. Tillman will fight on the floor of the Senate. "I didn't see any signs of gloom in there," remarked Mr. Townsend, smilingly.

Perhaps Not So Delighted.

There is doubt whether Senator Dilliver is as delighted as he would have the public believe. He based his hope of a presidential boom on that bill to regulate railway rates. He thought that, as the floor leader of the fight which should be made for it, he would be in the limelight for several weeks, during one of the most hotly-contested and spectacular legislative contests of recent years. But his calculations miscarried, and he is reduced to the position of a twister, his thumbs, while Mr. Tillman and thirty-two other Democratic senators, all there are, will struggle to see the administration measure become a law. Aldrich, Elkins and Lodge, the redoubtable Lodge, the whilom "mouthpiece of the administration," as he loved to hear himself termed, will be in the same position. Though Dilliver is believed to be sincerely in favor of a rate bill, "We of the minority" may be a perfectly "apostate" phrase in the mouth of the Massachusetts senator, in the course of a speech on the bill. And it will sound upon the ears of Democrats, who have long had to bear the insufferable arrogance of Lodge, with a sweetness all its own.

Rift in the Clouds.

"It is a rift in the clouds," said a Democratic senator to-day. And the thought was manifested in the broad smiles wreathing the faces of Democrats wherever found. There is believed to be no doubt that the sentiment of the country is overwhelmingly in favor of governmental regulation of railroad charges. Democrats have been declaring for this for years. The Republicans have never declared for the principle in national convention, but a decided majority of them followed the President and supported the Hepburn bill in the House, uniting with the solid Democratic side. If the fight for the bill in the Senate were between Republicans alone it is extremely doubtful whether there would be any legislation on the subject at all worthy of the name. As it is, the bill which will pass will be got through by the Democrats, a Democratic leader, and solid Democratic support.

"There seems but one thing for the Republicans to do," said a Republican official of the Treasury Department to-day to the Times-Dispatch correspondent. "That is for them to assemble in national convention before the Democrats convene in 1908, adopt the Democratic platform of 1896, and nominate Mr. Bryan. If they do this, anything like the rate bill as it is expected to be for the thipper, such a course is the only one by which the Republican party can win."

Veteran Democrats, like Senator Bailey and others, say to-day they have not been as hopeful concerning the immediate future of the party in many years.

Not Indicate Final Shape.

The action of the Interstate Commerce Committee in voting to report the bill does not indicate anything concerning the final shape in which it will be passed. The resolution to report the measure favorably contained a clause giving to any senator the right to amend it as he may choose. So that, whether the bill will finally contain a clause giving to the railroads the right to appeal from the decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission regarding a rate, or the rate fixed by the commission to no effect, and remain the rate until the court passes on the case, cannot be predicted with any greater accuracy than before the committee took action.

What Aldrich Says.

Speaking to-day of Mr. Tillman's great satisfaction, saying that under the circumstances, it was the wisest and best that could be made.

Already there is much discussion on the subject of amendments, and it was made evident to-day in the scene of activity in the committee room, that a review provision had been transferred from the committee room to the floor of the Senate. It is the belief that with such an amendment, the bill will secure practically all of the Republican votes and the bill will be passed.

Senator Tillman favors such an amendment. So does Senator Carmack. Senator Aldrich is inclined to the same course. Senator Dilliver, who has been in the city for some days, is believed to incline to a review amendment.

There is as yet no reason to change or modify in any way the statement made repeatedly in this correspondence in the course of the past month that the bill, as finally enacted, will contain a review clause, as outlined above.

SELECTING TILLMAN CAUSES COMMENT

Wisest and Best That Could Have Been Made, Says Aldrich.

What Tillman Says.

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., February 24.—Yesterday's developments in connection with the railroad rate problem in the Senate committee on interstate commerce continued to be the uppermost topic about the capital to-day. There were comparatively few Senators in their committee rooms, but those who were here were busy with the discussion of the situation. Among the most active were Senators Aldrich, Dilliver, Clapp and Elkins, all members of the Interstate Commerce Committee. Senator Tillman, to whom was as unexpectedly assigned the duty of reporting the bill, was called to his home by illness, but his colleagues were in frequent communication with him over the telephone. He felt that he had a slight cold, but told no doubt that he would be able to appear in his seat in the Senate on Monday.

day, when he would report the bill, as directed by the committee.

The unexpected assignment of Mr. Tillman to this duty received as much attention as the sudden determination to report the bill. Members of the committee were full of reminiscences of the meeting, and not the least interesting of these was the story of the details of Mr. Tillman's selection. His name was proposed, as has been stated, by Senator Aldrich, but he was not mentioned in that connection until after considerable discussion of the advisability of selecting some one else for the service. The first intention was to confer the honor upon Senator Bullion, as the oldest member of the committee, but he was not mentioned in that connection until after considerable discussion of the advisability of selecting some one else for the service. The first intention was to confer the honor upon Senator Bullion, as the oldest member of the committee, but he was not mentioned in that connection until after considerable discussion of the advisability of selecting some one else for the service.

Senator Aldrich will on Monday make a statement on the floor of the Senate outlining his attitude toward railroad rate legislation. He announced both to senators and newspaper men to-day that people who supposed he was opposed to legislation were very much mistaken.

Senators Congratulated.

Senators Dilliver and Clapp were the subjects of congratulation, and both expressed great satisfaction over the result of the committee's deliberations.

Mr. Dilliver manifested no chagrin over the selection of Mr. Tillman as the floor manager for the bill, but said that he would secure all the satisfaction possible if no meritorious measure could become a law. He was seen just after he had left the White House, where he had a conference with the President, and he assured all those with whom he came in contact that the President was quite as delighted over the prospect as himself.

Senator Elkins, one of the Republican members of the committee, who did not vote for the bill, expressed the opinion that the bill would pass.

It is not thought that the bill will be taken up for continued consideration for two or three weeks, as the senators who desire to participate in its discussion, find it necessary to take time to prepare for that duty.

DENTISTS BANQUET.

Pi Theta Sigma Fraternity Enjoy Themselves.

The Beta Chapter of the Pi Theta Sigma Fraternity of the University College of Medicine gave a delightful banquet Friday night in the city hotel. All the members and many guests from the faculty of the college and practicing dentists of the city were present.

The occasion was one of mild hilarity and thorough enjoyment. A delightful menu was served, and the toasts and the responses were quite a pleasant reminiscence, keen humor and brilliant sallies.

The toastmaster was Dr. Ernest K. Brandis, who acquitted himself with good humor and many sharp witticisms at the expense of his friends and associates. Dr. C. H. Greider responded to "Our Fraternity," Dr. R. M. Miller responded to "Professional Pharmacy," Dr. M. R. Ridd to "Fraternal Spirit," Dr. D. D. Bowman to "Our Alma Mater," Dr. E. A. Cheatham to "The Quix Master," Dr. George E. Barksdale to "Professions," Dr. J. G. Miller to "The Proprietor," Dr. B. M. Harper to "The Graduate," Dr. M. D. Crockett to "Our Family," and Dr. D. Alden Lyon to "Our Future."

All the speakers acquitted themselves with admirable credit, showing that they are as much at home in the use of the mother tongue as they are in the operations of the dental surgery.

Adams—Miles.

One of the prettiest marriages of the past week was that of Mr. Oscar Adams and Miss Ida Hoffman. The wedding took place Wednesday evening at 8:30 o'clock in the Christian Church in Fairmount, in the new church since it was completed.

Promptly at the appointed time the bridal party entered to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march. In the following order: Messrs. Irvin, Conboy and Leslie Atkinson, ushers, followed by Mr. Adams and his best man, Mr. A. L. Blake, followed by Miss Ida Hoffman and Beale Tyler, as bridesmaid. They came the bride, leaning on the arm of her brother-in-law, Mr. Robert Sims, who gave her away.

The bride was beautifully gowned in white crepe de chine, built on tulle, lace bodice, and wore a long tulle veil and orange blossoms. The bridesmaids were daintily gowned in French maid with green girdles, and carried silver bouquets tied with green tulle.

Rev. Hugh Sublett was the officiating minister. The church was beautifully decorated with palms. Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Adams were driven to the bride's home, where she changed her wedding dress for a traveling gown, after which they were driven to the depot, where they took the train for an extended trip through Florida for two weeks' duration. Upon their return they will occupy their new home, on Twenty-third Street.

Both Mr. Adams and his fair bride are universal favorites in the East End. They received many kind words and expressions of sympathy, which attest the high esteem in which they are held.

Knows President's Views.

When asked if his relation toward the bill would probably lead to frequent conferences with the President, the senator hesitated a moment, and replied: "The President's views are well understood. He has expressed himself very fully in his message and in interviews. The newspapers have not spared any opportunity to announce what they saw fit to do so."

"Do you take the view that this railroad rate legislation is a Democratic measure, now that it has been reported by a majority of Democrats on the committee and by a Democratic measure?"

"It is a non-partisan measure," replied Senator Tillman. "It is neither Republican nor Democratic, but it can no longer be called a Republican measure."

Post A's Meeting Last Night.

The monthly meeting of Post A, Travelers' Protective Association, was held last night at headquarters. Mr. Thomas P. D. Bowman, secretary, reported.

The National Convention of the T. P. A. of America will meet in Buffalo, N. Y., as the State Convention will be held at the same time. The convention will have to be held at least thirty days before the National Convention, the State Board at a recent meeting requested Post A, to set a date, and in obedience to this request the meeting last night set Friday and Saturday, May 11th and 12th, as the time for Virginia delegates to meet to transact the annual business of the State division.

In connection with this matter of annual convention, Post A last night also decided to hold its annual meeting Thursday, March 29th. This matter of annual meetings will keep the members quite busy for the next three months.

Several important committees were appointed last night to conduct the various affairs of the association, and it will be gratifying to our wide-awake citizens the result of the work of the members of Post A, Travelers' Protective Association, in the near future.

Reports from the various standing committees, from reports with pleasing effects of work accomplished by them, and the increase of membership and the funds of the treasury, elicited expressions of commendation from the large membership present last night.

Weltz Page Confesses Attempted Criminal Assault and His Body is Riddled.

BLANCHARD'S TROOPS LATE

When Governor Got His Forces On Scene Quiet Had Been Restored.

(By Associated Press.)

SHREVEPORT, La., February 24.—A mob of five hundred men shot to death Weltz Page, a negro aged thirty years, and afterwards burned the body near the town of Bienville, in Bienville Parish, this afternoon. The negro was captured during last night, suspected of being the one who attempted a criminal assault on Sarah Gant, an eleven-year-old school girl, yesterday afternoon. Page was identified by the girl, and when a deputy sheriff started to take her to the police station, he was taken to the scene of the crime, where he made a full confession. The mob then stood him up against a tree and shot him to death, riddling his body with bullets. More than five hundred shots were fired.

After the shooting a fire was kindled around the body of the negro, and the mob remained until it had been cremated. A military company, ordered by Governor Blanchard from Homer, La., reached the scene of the lynching, but when they arrived the mob had dispersed and quiet restored.

HON. JAMES MURPHY.

This popular and respected jurist, in writing of his remarkable cure, recently said: "Some years ago I commenced to be troubled with a weak side and back, and I suffered intense misery from kidney disease. I consulted a doctor, and was under his care for a long time, but he did me no good. I got a bottle of Warner's Safe Cure, and it worked wonders from the start. I continued to use it, and, although eighty-four years of age, in about two months I was in my normal condition, and for the return of my health I thank the Lord and your great medicine. Whenever I hear of any one having the same trouble I advise them to take Safe Cure, which I am satisfied will cure them."

"About five years ago I advised a friend, who was very ill and lame from kidney trouble, to take Safe Cure, which he proceeded to do, and in a short time he was cured." He now writes me that he could not get along without it under any circumstances."—JAMES P. MURPHY, 515 South Joliet Street, Joliet, Ill. November 9, 1905.
